On CBC Wednesday Night

The Ron Collier Quintet

... presents a program in three parts each a variation on a "blues" theme

"GOOD JAZZ, like any top-flight musical composition, should be like an inspired sermon, or a first-class lawyer's address to the jury. It should state an assumption, allow for logical development of its theme, and at the same time it should be highly persuasive, relying on inventive technique to pluck at the heart strings. Ron Collier does this to perfection." That was Carne Bray, bass player and spokesman for the Ron Collier Quintet, a group of jazzmen who have been treating Canadians to a new sound since 1954. They use no piano. Their musical relationship is provided by the individual instruments in a horizontal blending, as opposed to the more vertical one in the usual piano-controlled integration. Some of their most interesting work has been within the old, traditional musical forms, though they have done some bold and startling things "a way, way out." Says Bray: "We're trying to find where both schools overlap and riding on that peak. It's a very narrow and demanding road. We have to play jazz with the finesse and delicacy of chamber music." This sets them apart from run-of-the-mill jazz groups. Much of their music is written by leader Ron Collier and by Norm Symonds, who frequently joins the group as instrumentalist, "making it the largest quintet in the world." Says Bray: "At first Ron's writing was so far off centre that a couple of musicians refused to play with him. But now he's placing greater reliance on the basics in music, on the simple things that count in art. He won't work under pressure, but when he puts down an idea he does it with skill and insight hard to match."

The old conception of a jazzman as someone rather shady, shaggy, unwashed, on dope makes Bray laugh. One of the first things you notice about him and the Collier group is how clean-cut they are. Bray feels that "jazzmen have no need for the stimulation of dope if they have an outlet for their music, and our big outlet is the CBC." All members of the quintet are studio musicians in CBC radio and television ... that's their

RICK HART

As host of Background on Sunday nights on CBC-TV, Rick Hart gives viewers a closer look at the people and events in the world news of the week, and examines the political issues behind it. Often he has personal knowledge of the country in question, for he visited many foreign places in his long career with the British, Indian and Canadian armies.

Born in Folkstone, England, he ran away from home to join the army at the age of 17, at the outbreak of the Second World War. In 1949 he came to Canada and joined Lord Strathcona's Horse Regiment (the Royal Canadians).

Six years later he decided to leave the army, began studying for a degree in political science and history at the University of Saskatchewan, and graduated two months ago.

To help support his wife and family while he was at university, he worked part time as a weatherman, disc jockey, and announcer on CFQC-TV in Saskatoon, and on vacation played bit parts in radio dramas on CJCA, Edmonton.

That taste of broadcasting and on-camera work made him decide to try his luck in a showbusiness career. Last March he borrowed a couple of hundred dollars, took two days off from classes and flew to Toronto to audition on the CBC.

He clicked at once, and his appearance on Background is the result.

Long Term Contracts

CBC Talent Development Pays Dividends

The long-standing CBC policy of developing Canadian talent is showing dramatic results.

One result which benefits the CBC, performers and viewers is the signing of long-term contracts between the CBC and top television personalities, said a CBC spokesman.

He said, that through this, the CBC is assured of being able to continue to present high-quality programs. The performer benefits from the security a longer contract gives, and is encouraged to remain in Canada and build his reputation and career here. The viewer will see the best Canadian talent on his TV screen.

Already signed in the long-term contract group are Wayne and Shuster (five years), Jack Kane (three years), Sylvia Murphy (two years) and Joan Fairfax (option for two years). Under contract for the fall are Juliette, Fred Davis, Anna Cameron, Bill Walker, Wally Koster, Gordie Tapp, Joyce Hahn, Allan Blye, Tommy Common and the Hames Sisters.

These stars are the product of CBC's "Canadian talent development plan."

In the three main categories of entertainment—variety, drama and talks — talent development differs slightly.

"You guide someone like Joyce Davidson or Peter Whittall," said talks producer Ross McLean, "but you are only trying to make the fullest use of what they were in the beginning."

Variety talent development starts with such shows as TV's Talent Caravan, scheduled again for the fall, and radio's Trans-Canada Talent Show.

Less obvious are auditions held regularly throughout the year and the constantly-scouting eyes of producers, supervisors and casting officers at night clubs, drama festivals and amateur and professional theatre.

Once talent is recognized, the CBC can advise and assist the performer in developing it. Should a vocalist try group singing, working in a night club or with a band? Does his voice need further training? Who is the best teacher for him?

The CBC can give advice and opportunity. After that it is up to the performer.

A yardstick for Canadian standards is the reaction from other countries to CBC variety stars, actors, producers and dramas. Television networks in the United Kingdom and the United States constantly extend invitations to CBC talent. Critical acclaim is high.

The flow of talent to other countries is considered a healthy sign by CBC producers. It shows a maturity in performers and reflects well on their training ground.

The new long-term contracts will not stop this flow. The CBC indicates it will continue to help performers obtain guest engagements in other countries.

Three-part drama on "Montreal Playbill"

The Trial of Addie Garth

Starring Barbara Chilcott

Recent statistics show that more than eight million women in North America have sustained the personal tragedy described in The Trial of Addie Garth, a 3-part drama which begins on Montreal Playbill Thursday night on CBC-TV. Author Mac Shoub is one of the few playwrights to deal with the tragedy of the young, still marriageable widow . . . her recovery from a shattering emotional experience, her insecurity, her haunting memories, and her maladjustment in a society ill-equipped to deal with her. Though her problem may lie in wait for any woman, sociologists have largely ignored it as serious, and jokes about women like Addie are usually good for a laugh.

Her story will be presented in three acts, the first on the 10th, the others on the 17th and 24th.

Barbara Chilcott, who plays 38-year-old Addie Garth, calls it "a wonderful role . . . highly emotional. It starts off in High C and goes on from there."

Miss Chilcott's maternal grandmother was a Romany gypsy of the Boswell tribe, who married a Welshman and came to Canada, settling in the Toronto area for the rest of her life. Her husband died in Toronto, and a Romany gypsy never leaves the locality of her husband's grave. Barbara was born in Newmarket, not far from Toronto, where her father's family settled over a century ago. From her half-gypsy mother she and her actor

Forty years ago post-war labour unrest erupted into a six-week strike, bringing normal life in Winnipeg to a halt, and in its final phase resulting in street clashes between supporters of the strike and police. Several strike leaders were later tried and convicted for seditious conspiracy in this incident which led to revisions in Canadian labour laws. Five men who were involved in the strike will be interviewed. Viewpoints of both the Strikers' and the Citizens' Committee will be shown, and the program will include a non-partisan summing-up of events by Leonard Earl, a retired Winnipeg newspaperman.

brothers, Murray and Donald Davis, inherited their love for the theatre. Mrs. Davis died while all three were very young, but their father (engaged in the family leather business) had them educated along the lines their mother would have chosen. Of her four children these three never seriously considered any other profession but the stage.

As a child Barbara played in Twelfth Night at Hart House in Toronto, and during the Second World War toured extensively with the Meet the Navy show. After the war she studied at the Central School of Drama in London, worked in repertory, and then played in the West End production

Television . . .

A New Language

Our language shapes our thoughts and the content of our thoughts is shaped by the world around us. With a different language we would have different thoughts and a different way of looking at the world. The outlook imposed on us by our language we call the metaphysic which is built into that language. And when we say that television is a new language, with its own built-in metaphysic, we mean that television imposes on us, or at least on our children, a new way of looking at the world.

Consider an analogy. A person who has lived all his life in a village is suddenly put down in a large city. At first he is confused by the buildings, neons, cars, shop windows, policemen, crosswalks, and hurrying people. But if he is adaptable in time he sorts out the confused kaleidoscope of impressions. He now sees the same things—buildings, neons, cars, shop windows, policemen, crosswalks and hurrying people—but he sees them differently, with an order imposed on them.

A Trobriand Islander (New Guinea) learning English would have the same sense of disorientation that the village boy has in the city. The Islander would be puzzled by the fact that an apple is an apple whether it is over-ripe or under-ripe, that it remains an apple from its first appearance on a tree till it becomes apple pie.

For the Trobriand Islander this continuity of the apple is a novel concept which he would find difficult to express in his own language. For instance, to the Islander a taytu is a type of yam. When it gets to what we would call an over-ripe taytu it ceases to exist for the Trobriand Islander. In its place appears a silasata. Although when pressed the Islander will recognize the lineal development of yam to over-ripe yam to sprouting yam, his language forms make it difficult for him to express the concept.

One difference in the two languages rests on the fact that English is based on the concept of the continuity of objects in space-time. Despite its changes in form from the branch to the pie, the apple remains the same apple because its history can be traced in space-time. This notion of an underlying substance whose appearances change—so difficult for the Trobriand Islander to express—has been essential to our whole western way of thinking. Impressive philosophic systems from Plato to Marx have been constructed with the aim of explaining what this underlying unchanging substance is. Modern science has presupposed the concept—until recently when quantum physics has seemed to undermine some of the corollary assumptions.

That is one reason the theories of quantum physics are so difficult to express in ordinary language.

One educationist, who speaks a number of languages, put it like this: "Just as the study of a new language, if adequately practised, demands the use physically of new facial muscles never used for American English (my students used to complain that their 'faces ached'), it also demands the use of parts of the brain and personality not used in English. Each language thoroughly learned (like any other discipline such as science or mathematics) opens up a new dimension of the mind, personality and spirit, demanding nerve connections and concepts not otherwise or previously used. Not only does one realize, after learning to use other languages, that there are certain things you cannot say in one language, though you can in another, but also that you can't even think certain thoughts—for there is no 'carrier' or vocabulary to bear them."

This might seem a long way from children and television. But the connection is direct. For theorists will often call television a new language. By this they mean that, in addition to the information that television might give to a child, it also imposes on him a way of looking at the world, a meta-

London Letter

Dr. Boyd Neel, Dean of the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto, is spending the summer in England. Before he left he promised to keep us posted on the musical scene on that side of the Atlantic. In this third of his "London Letters" he talks about two works performed by the New Opera Company.

A somewhat mysterious organization, known as the New Opera Company, makes an annual appearance at Sadlers Wells round about the end of July. I call it somewhat mysterious because nobody ever seems to know the exact motivating forces behind its extremely interesting activities. The only information the enquirer ever receives is that it is "something to do with Cambridge," and a year

Her two young sons think he is a bore. But Anna sees in him the kindly, gentle character she understands—just the opposite of her snobbish, middle class husband.

Weekend in Sports

Background

An examination of political events and issues, and their backgrounds, with commentator Rick Hart.

or two ago, we were told that it was "something to do with Vaughan Williams." Anyhow, whatever its inspiration may be, the important fact is that it gives the most interesting works which would never be heard at any of the routine theatres and gives them in a most efficient and highly professional manner. The sets are always excellent and well known singers are usually heard in the leading roles. The conductor is a young man called Leon Lovett, who never seems to be heard of at any other time of year, but who tackles anything from The Rake's Progress to the Tale of Two Cities without turning a hair, and makes an excellent job of it all.

I have heard this company in Sir John in Love and the Tale of Two Cities in former years and have been most impressed on each occasion. This year they are giving Dallapiccola's The Prisoner and Carl Orff's Die Kluge. I always thought that the CBC's production of The Prisoner, some seven years ago, was one of the best things Canadian radio had ever done, and musically, it was certainly better than the present Sadlers Wells performance, which seemed to be a little over-enthusiastic at times, with the result that our ears were assaulted with overpowering volumes of sound. But there is no doubt of the enormous power of this little masterpiece when seen on the stage and I do hope that we can soon see it in Toronto.

The Orff work is a complete contrast and provided an excellent foil for the grim and gloomy "Prisoner." I think the knock-about farce of Die Kluge (The Tale of the Wise Maiden) was rather overdone and the endless repetitions of the music began to pall before the end, but it was a most enjoyable evening. The company are also giving the Rake's Progress later in the week.

That annual phenomenon of London life, the Promenade Concerts, are with us again. The opening night audience rather suffered from the great heat, and there were many casualties among the standees in the Prom. Cyril Smith, who can now play almost as brilliantly with his right hand alone as he used to play with both hands, was heard in the Mozart two piano concerto with his wife, Phyllis Sellick. Many listeners thought that this familiar music sounded better on three hands than on four. Smith's "come back" after his affliction is a fine story of great courage and determination. Sir Malcolm once more officiated in his own inimitable manner. It looks as though he will be as much a part of Prom history as their founder, the never to be forgotten Sir Henry Wood.

For those interested in theatre history, there is a fascinating exhibition at present to be seen in the bars of the Saville theatre. Among the rarities are a playbill of the Theatre Royal, Bradford of the week Irving died there, shoe buckles worn by Garrick, the make-up box of Devant, the famous illusionist, a letter of Shaw about the Devil's Disciple and a program of Mussolini's play "Napoleon."

TELEVISION . . .

physic. And what is this new television metaphysic? The question will not be answered even sketchily until this new generation of children, born since TV has become an integral part of everyday life, has grown up. But how will it affect a child's notion of space and time to see events at the other side of the world, almost at the moment they occur? What will it do to a child's sense of belonging—to a place or a group—when at the age of three he can flip a switch and go from a Spanish bullfight to a market place in Tokyo?

Some observers already claim new trends caused by television. For instance, television dramas, they say, are constructed on one basic formula: first the problem is posed, then a climax is reached, and finally a solution is offered with the ends more or less neatly tied. The constant reiteration of such a pattern is alleged to be conditioning children to expect the same pattern in life. Such a pattern is not forthcoming, of course, since the life of an individual is a loosely organized affair in which few incidents have this sort of beginning, middle, and end.

Nevertheless, the general point is valid: TV does have its own metaphysic. The child of book-film-radio culture differed in many ways from the child of book culture alone. Television is likely to make as fundamental a difference. There seems no inherent reason why this must be bad.

Tuesdays on CBC-TV

Focus on Ottawa

A series of programs exploring points of interest in and around Canada's capital city.

Introduced by TERRY KIELTY.

vocalist Donna Andert, the Altones and Zack Matalon featured vocalist on the "Juliette" show. Ernest Mutimer, producer. From Winnipeg.

Two for Physics

"Fission and Fusion" — man will survive on earth long after his energy stores of coal and oil are used up, because he is learning how to release the energy stored in the nucleus. Sometimes this energy is released when nuclei are torn apart and sometimes when they are fused together. Tonight, Professors Patterson Hume and Donald Ivey elaborate on this theory in their discussion on nuclear energy.

CBWT—Seel Hear!

This week—"Link of Steel," a film on the operation of Winnipeg's marshalling yards. Produced by Felix Lazarus. (This was originally scheduled for last week).

Living without weight seems more likely to be a nuisance than a danger.

People have already been able to experiment with weightlessness by flying a curved path through the air long enough to find out that eating and drinking are made rather difficult. Without weight bits of food float all over the place. When you're trying to drink from a glass, a slight jerk may send a balloon of water floating up into your face, and as you gasp it's drawn up into your nose as well as your mouth. The right thing to do is to squeeze the liquid into your mouth from a plastic bottle, but even when you have swallowed some you must go carefully—a bump or a jump may send it out again, by the same way it went down.—Dennis Desoutter on BBC.

"Swing Easy's" Bill Richards

Hoedown or Bach—it's all the same to violinist Bill Richards. And as well as being one of the busiest musician - arranger - conductors in Toronto, Richards often doubles as comic or straight man on some of his own shows.

Richards currently appears on Swing Easy, Saturdays on the CBC-TV network. He arranges and conducts the music for this program, plays the violin and appears in bits of comedy routine.

Before appearing on Swing Easy, Richards was a regular performer on Holiday Ranch for four years.

On CBC radio, he's heard in two editions of Guest Time each week in Eastern Canada. He conducted and arranged for the Trans-Canada Talent Show in 1958-59, and plays regularly in National School Broadcasts.

Born in Ottawa, Ont., Richards has been a part of show business since he was 2½ years old. He was a pianist and elocutionist until he was introduced to the violin at the age of seven. He concentrated on this instrument to the exclusion of all other sidelines, with the exception of a bit of acting with a stock company.

At 19, Bill joined the Royal Canadian Navy and spent 2½ years with the Navy Show orchestra.

While in the Navy Show, Richards met his actress wife,

BILL RICHARDS

Billie Richards, who is perhaps best known for her portrayal of the Kid in the long-run CBC radio series Jake and the Kid.

Billie and Bill have four children. They recently acquired 18 acres of land outside Toronto, which they are now busy clearing.

"Irish committee meetings are, by comparison with English ones, leisurely and homely in their conduct.

There's never the same urgent pressure to get things done, and there's none of that tremendous decorum, formality, impartiality, that impresses one so much in England. Partiality is the nature of Ireland: people matter more than principles, and rules of procedure are always sliding rules."

—W. R. Rodgers, the Irish poet, speaking on the BBC.

Studio Pacific

This week—"The Bunker," by Herb Hosie. During the Second World War, a bunker full of German soldiers somewhere in the African desert has been sealed by a shell. Hope of survival disappears slowly when the trapped men notice sand falling out of the air shafts into the bunker. The question is—how long will it be before the shifting seasonal winds completely cover the air ventilators with sand? It is the German methodical and mathematical mind that computes the approaching end and the leader, thus knowing when the end will be, grows steadily mad.

TRIAL OF ADDIE GARTH

of The Young and the Fair, and in Dark Eyes with Yul Brynner and Irina Baronova. In January, 1954, she and her brothers, all of them then under 30, founded Toronto's permanent rep. company, the Crest Theatre, which has helped to sustain the upsurge of interest in Canadian theatre sparked by the Stratford Festivals. That summer Tyrone Guthrie chose Miss Chilcott to play Katharine in The Taming of the Shrew at Stratford, where she won wide acclaim, and later appeared there in Julius Caesar. In 1955 she played Zenocrate in Guthrie's staging of Marlowe's Tamburlaine the Great in New York's Winter Garden.

Her vivid, gypsy-like face has been seen from time to time on stage at Toronto's Crest Theatre, as the wife in The Fourposter, Emilia in Othello, and Dr. Maria Sobieska in Hunting Stuart by Robertson Davies. From 1957 to 1959 she was in London with the British production of The Glass Cage, written for the Crest Theatre by J. B. Priestley, returning to Canada briefly in 1958 for the Folio production of Corinth House. She also played the title role in Hedda Gabler, the CBC's first televised Ibsen production. Miss Chilcott is married to actor Max Helpmann, brother of the Royal Ballet's Robert Helpmann.

Janet Reid, who plays Addie Garth's daughter, is a veteran of more than 50 CBC productions. She's a Winnipeg girl who studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London, and after several years in British repertory and television dramas, returned to Canada in 1954. Ed McNamara, who plays Addie's brother-in-law, got his acting start in Vancouver's Theatre

Under the Stars, which led to a series of dramatic roles for CBC radio, and permanent residence in Toronto.

Montreal Journalist Named CBC

Paris Correspondent

Dostaler O'Leary, aged 51, a well-known Montreal journalist and radio and TV commentator will take up his new post as CBC correspondent in Paris early next week.

Before this appointment Mr. O'Leary was engaged in public relations for Air France in Montreal; in addition, he was writing for the weekly La Patrie where he had formerly been a staff member for 21 years.

The newly-appointed French language correspondent in Paris has to his credit freelance experience on CBC radio and TV programs. For several years he has been seen or heard as commentator, guest or panelist on the French networks Information, Public Affairs and Quiz programs.

Mr. O'Leary holds a degree in science from the Institute Maurice, Brussels. He has written a study on French Canadian fiction and has risen to notice in literary circles. In addition to his mother tongue, French, he speaks English and Spanish.

The Fall of Quebec

A battle for historians

ON SEPTEMBER 13 200 years will have passed since the armies of Wolfe and Montcalm met on the Plains of Abraham in a battle that changed the entire course of history on the North American continent.

Jacques Cartier had made his first trip to the new world 225 years before that momentous day in 1759; La Nouvelle France had existed for 151 years and held in the name of the Mother Country vast possessions that extended over a good part of the continent.

The battle of the Plains of Abraham marked the beginning of the end of French rule. The two commanders, Wolfe and Montcalm, were soldiers of great distinction and both fell mortally wounded.

General Wolfe has been described as "a desperately ill military genius." From his earliest years he was determined to pursue a military career regardless of very poor health. At 32 he was chosen by Pitt to attempt to take Quebec because of the brilliant and conspicuous part he had played at the siege of Louisbourg a year earlier.

General Montcalm, Louis-Joseph De St. Veran, Marquis de Montcalm, was sent to Canada in 1756 to take command of the troops and despite numerous handicaps such as incompetence and corruption in the French regime, he was remarkably successful. In his private life, he was a man of integrity and honour and a good husband and a good father to his 12 children.

What happened at the battle of the Plains of Abraham and afterwards is recounted in every school history book. The facts are all there but there are different sets of facts, even some conflicting ones. Above all, there are discrepancies between the history books used in French

Canada and those used in English Canada.

How exactly, today, in 1959, does French Canada and English Canada look back 200 years to those facts? How do historians of the two language groups regard the battle, its consequences and its gallant generals and how do they evaluate them?

This is what two television programs will attempt to summarize on Thursday, Sept. 10, in a novel experiment. The same program will be presented in French on Premier Plan, over the French network, and in English on Explorations under the title The Fall of Quebec: A battle for Historians. The programs are the result of film shooting in different parts of the country and live studio inserts from Montreal, under the supervision of two Montreal producers, who will have collaborated every step of the way from creation of the idea to the programs' appearance on the air.

The same leading Canadian historians will answer similar questions on both programs—questions put to them in English by Explorations (Please turn to page 23) seen in Montreal and later at Stratford Shakespearean Festival, Ontario.

Loretta Young

Drama series introduced by Loretta Young. This week — "The Portrait." A painter tries to capture the beauty of a mysterious recluse on canvas but discovers the secret of her past instead. (This is the final program in the current series).

Explorations

"The Fall of Quebec: A Battle for Historians." This week Explorations marks the 200th anniversary (on September 13) of the fall of Quebec and the mortal wounding of Generals Montcalm and Wolfe. Leading Canadian historians will be asked the following questions: "In two sets of contradictory facts about the battle on the Plains of Abraham which has the greater truth?" What have been the repercussions in Canada of the British Conquest?" "Historically, what have been the attitudes of our two major language groups toward co-existence?" "What are the attitudes of today, and ought we to teach a single unified history of Canada to all Canadian children?" Panel: Guy Fregault, Very Rev. Father Georges Henri Levesque, O.P., Chanoine Lionel Groulx, Monseigneur Arthur Maheux, Hilda Neatby, George F. Stanley, Professor Al Burt.

Two for Physics

I have been waiting with considerable interest and curiosity for some record in the Mailbag of the reaction of your viewers to the new experiment in "entertainment" the program Two for Physics. Since none has appeared as yet I have reached the conclusion that most of the viewers either turn the abomination off or watch it and find their minds so stultified they cannot produce a reaction. It would be interesting to know if this program is classed as entertainment, education or simply an experiment by the CBC to ascertain how much boredom the average viewer can stand before rebelling. I was exposed to physics in University and I cannot get any value whatsoever from the program which leaps about from subject to subject like a mad gazelle without, so far as I can see, any cohesion or any sense. One wonders what value a viewer with a Grade 11 or less education will get from it. Surely he can be educated less painfully than this? No doubt the motive of the program is good. The subject matter and the participants, including the atoms, the gas, and the everlasting blackboard, are a complete pain in the neck to most viewers according to my own private survey. Will the next project in this series be a simple explanation of Einstein's theory?—H.L.W., B.Sc., M.D., C.M., Regina.

H.L.W.'s letter was received moments after we went to press last week with two letters praising Two For Physics in our Mailbag column.

Parade

It was a real pleasure to see and hear last night's Parade. At last! jazz presented as jazz should be—uninhibitedly and honestly. Instead of the usual "washed in soap suds" treatment we were treated to an unadulterated offering of good jazz, something I believed impossible for television. A beautifully handled program. Congratulations to everyone that had a hand in it.—R.D.G., Edmonton.

Bull Fighting

I wish to enter a protest at the showing (twice) last week of a bull fight, or portion of it—once on the "National News" and yesterday on "News Magazine." The taunting of a dumb animal, apart from the "kill," is surely foreign to the nature of Canadians. I cannot think of them enjoying that "sport." I cannot think we would want our young people to get used to seeing scenes of cruelty. Please—no more.—Mrs. M.E., Norwood, Man.

One of a Kind

May I quote from your "Wrestling with the Future" article in your August 2-8 issue?

"In the world of art, nihilism has firmly implanted its destructive feet; perhaps we can negate that nihilism, perhaps we can't. Perhaps too we can negate the positivism of science or positivize the negation of Marxism."

Who writes this gobbledeygook? And what place has it in a program schedule? Let's have no more of it. And while I'm writing you, I must say I'm all for Mrs. R. N. of Wetaskiwin, and her remarks concerning the substitution of "Live a Borrowed Life" for "One of a Kind." I am definitely not for Mrs. R. A. W., of Halifax, who rates "Front Page Challenge" as a show topping "One of a Kind." Not too long ago your pages stated that the latter program was fast nudging the former. Personally, I don't care who lives a borrowed life from now till freeze-up, but if you don't bring back "One of a Kind" with the first snow, and continue to give us entertainment for erudition, you're going to hear from a whole slew of us.—H. S. M. Kemp, Prince Albert, Sask.

Background

It is with shame and a deep sense of disgust of my fellow creatures that I hereby lodge a very strong protest at the cutting off of the last of the talk on A and H bombs, and their effects on our very existence, on your very interesting TV show—"Background." What if it did mean rearranging the program a little? Have we not had interruptions to programs before? And to see flashed on our screen at what seemed to be the climax of the talk—"Cannonball"—well it made me feel sick. This is the first time in my life I have ever written either to a newspaper, radio or TV, on any subject, but tonight I didn't feel angry, only ashamed and a little sick.—D.D.P., Winnipeg.

This Is the Life

This is just a note of appreciation for bringing the program "This Is the Life" back again. We missed it so much last winter. I do hope you'll be able to bring it to us for the whole year. For family entertainment it is one of the best programs on the air. I also like the new time, 2:00 p.m., very much too.—Mrs. A.U., Winnipeg.

On the Sunny Side

We couldn't let the evening go by without writing to you to tell you how much we enjoy your show, "On The Sunny Side." It's very informative and at the same time very refreshing. Glad to see that it has been extended to a half-hour show. Keep it up, as it is one of the shows we look forward to.—Mrs. M.M., Winnipeg.

Western Artists

Thank you for your delightful song recital of this evening. Gudrun Simonar chose such beautiful songs to sing, and her very fine accompanist, Snjolaug Sigurdson, complemented her performance as no one else could have done. It is always a pleasure to hear Miss Sigurdson play.—A.A.R., Creston, B.C.

Manitoba Mirror

I have listened to the Manitoba Mirror broadcasts at Arborg and Pine Falls with considerable interest insofar as they concerned the people and the areas, for they are informative. But in the future broadcasts at other areas I do hope that you will keep the material of each broadcast strictly dealing with the countryside and the towns and the people, severely deleting the nondescript recordings of dull Sinatra songs and those, especially, of screeching females that have as much music in their renderings as the wheel of an ox-cart in motion. I concede the point that I may be a hard man to please, but the majority will agree that dull recordings that come over the air, sometimes several times in one day, certainly should not be reproduced on a broadcast of the nature of Manitoba Mirror. Cut out the so-called musical recordings and Manitoba Mirror will please, entertain and instruct all who listen to radio. The broadcasts of Manitoba Mirror are limited as to time, so why spoil them with hackneyed renderings of mediocre records. Let Manitoba Mirror be "mirror" of parts of Manitoba, without recordings of any nature.—C.P.M.F., Routledge, Manitoba.

Thursday on Prairie Playhouse

Judith Sinclair in Starring Role

Judith Sinclair will return from Toronto to her native Winnipeg to repeat her lead role in the CBC Prairie Playhouse production of "Cranes Fly South," Thursday, September 10, at 10:00 p.m. Miss Sinclair will play the role of Lee, the small boy who discovers a Whooping Crane in his neighbourhood and thereby enables his grandfather to realize a life-long ambition. The grandfather will be played by Bill Sellers. Mary Brown and Cec Montgomery will be heard as Lee's parents.

Prior to leaving for Toronto a year ago to continue her studies and commence her career as a professional actress, Miss Sinclair had established a wide reputation with CBW and CBWT audiences, particularly on the CBC Farm Broadcast "The Jackson's and Their Neighbours," on which program she played successively Buddy Jackson and Jackie Davis during the past eight years. She has also played in over 100 Winnipeg radio dramas, 150 school broadcasts, and took the lead in "Who Has Seen the Wind," on Summer Stage.

In the past year, besides studying Dramatic Art under Joseph Furst at the Toronto Conservatory, Miss Sinclair has been heard regularly over CBC radio, including "CBC Stage," "CBC Wednesday Night," School and International Service Broadcasts, as well as CBC television. She will be remembered for her playing of "Georgie" in the G.M. Theatre vehicle of that name, last winter. She also appeared recently on stage with the Red Barn Theatre, Lake Simcoe, in "Skin of Our Teeth," with Toby Robins, of TV fame.

Miss Sinclair's last Winnipeg appearance was in the successful

Shoe String Theatre production of "The Moon Is Blue." She previously had roles in Winnipeg stage productions by Theatre 77, the Summer Theatre Association, the University of Manitoba Stage Society, Children's Theatre and the Little Theatre.

Latest word regarding the achievements of this rapidly advancing young performer is the recent announcement that she has been signed by Canadian Players to appear in the 1959-1960 all-Canada tour of that organization commencing in Kingston, Ontario, in October. Miss Sinclair will play the roles of "Essie" in Shaw's "Devil's Disciple," and "Luciana" in Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors." Following the Kingston opening, Canadian Players will tour Eastern Canada before commencing the Western tour early in the new year.

MUSIC ON RADIO

by FRANK HAWORTH

BBROADCAST music this week reflects the continuation of summer in a variety of works suggesting relaxation in the open air—serenade, divertimento and the like. (Perhaps we should put this in the past tense, and refer to open-air music that used to suggest relaxation; for some of the "music" currently considered suitable for open-air dissemination, via the portable radios now so appallingly popular with the teenage population, suggests anything but relaxation. Alas, alas, that the beneficial activities of science should be so persistently diverted to unsocial ends.)

Particularly intriguing is the title of American Serenade, a program to be played by the McGill Chamber Orchestra, under Alexander Brott, on Wednesday evening. That the serenade should have come to be associated almost exclusively in the public mind with amorous ditties addressed by ardent gentlemen without to eager ladies within, is rather unfortunate. Actually, the term implies no more than music suitable for performance out of doors, in fine weather, with a suggestion of evening—Italian "sera" and French "soir," though the term is derived mainly from the Latin "serenus," meaning calm; and it is in this sense that it is usually understood in the musical world.

The numerous serenades of Haydn, Mozart and their contemporaries were commonly written for the entertainment of the guests at outdoor social functions, and were, in fact, suites of pieces in light style, designed for easy listening; and the many later composers who produced similar works followed the same general pattern. Two compositions both by American writers, make up the program on Wednesday evening. The first is a Suite in E, by Arthur Foote, who died in 1937—one of the most distinguished American composers of his day, who enjoyed the distinction of being the only American composer of eminence, of his generation, to be trained entirely in the U.S. The second is the Serenade of George Antheil, American born, of Polish extraction, and long resident in France—famous forever for his Ballet Mechanique, scored for airplane propellers, anvils, electric bells, motor horns, pieces of tin, and other media of artistic expression. (This gentleman of parts has also, I understand, written crime stories, and conducted a symphonic "advice to the love-lorn" column—among other enterprises.)

Another colourful character is Marcel Poot, a Belgian composer whose contributions to the tonal art include a symphonic poem about Charlie Chaplin. He is represented this week, however, by a Divertimento, to be played at the Winnipeg Summer Concert on Sunday afternoon, in the staid company of Haydn's Symphony No. 104—better known as the London symphony, although actually it was no more "the" London symphony than the eleven others that he wrote for that city. It was Haydn's last symphony. The program also features a symphony by that boon companion (or bete noire, according to point of view) of our school days, Muzio Clementi. The twelve little piano sonatinas, on which so many of us cut our musical teeth all those years ago, were for long the only items of his considerable output by which he was generally remembered; but the revival of one of his many symphonies by the BBC in England did something to restore his one-time prestige.

POSTMARK U.K.

Following Sam Pollock's "News From Home," Arthur Bush visits Bristol, in the west of England. Although a great deal of rebuilding has been done since the war, the city still has some fine old churches and houses left dating back to Queen Elizabeth I, and along the water from there are some interesting old inns that have survived from the 17th century—inns where smugglers are known to have met. Bristol is one of the great centres of the aircraft industry, and it's here that the Britannia aircraft is made.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

School Days. September is the month when Canadian children trudge unwillingly back to school. On this Labour Day holiday, comedienne Joyce Grenfell reminisces about her school days and some of the amusing things that happened to her when she was a student. Miss Grenfell is a noted stage, radio and television actress who has toured in New York and other parts of the United States and in Northern Rhodesia. This talk was obtained for "Matinee" through the BBC.

Interview. Dr. Bernice Grafstein is a member of the department of physiology at McGill University in Montreal. She was in Toronto earlier this year, attending a conference of the Canadian Federation of Biological societies. Dr. Grafstein's special field is the human brain—and much of her research is done on cats. She and Edna May, the CBC's morning commentator in Toronto, recorded this conversation during the Toronto conference.

Folk Songs and Singing. Pete Seegar is one of North America's best-loved singers of folk songs. In this interview with Don North, Mr. Seegar talks about folk singing as a pastime and a tradition and about folk songs as authentic artistic expressions. Mr. North is a theological student who works with the University of British Columbia's radio society.

Daily Features . . . Today's news commentary is by Margaret Prang of Vancouver. Francean Campbell plays some of her favourite records, and excerpts are read from "Northwest of 16," by J. G. MacGregor, adapted for radio by Sally Creighton.

The questions to be asked the historians are: "In two sets of contradictory facts about the battle of the Plains of Abraham, which has the greater truth, what have been the repercussions in Canada of the British conquest?; historically what have been the attitudes of our two major language groups towards co-existence?; what are the attitudes today?; and ought we to teach a single unified history of Canada to all Canadian children?"

Stanley and Hilda Neatby are his former pupils.

The introductory portion of the program, which leads up to the interviews with the historians, will show students in their classrooms reading from their history books, representative Canadians from various parts of the country answering the same questions about what the battle of the Plains of Abraham means to them and documents of the period during a filmed visit to the Wolfe-Montcalm exhibit at the National Archives in Ottawa.

The producer of Explorations, which originates from Montreal on this occasion, is Roger Racine and of Premier Plan, Robert Seguin, under the supervision of Marcel Blouin and Herbert Steinhouse.

* * *

A comedian is one who is in touch with life as we see it and as we know it. He exaggerates the familiar types and the usual happenings. He makes the ridiculous more ridiculous by his satirical touches. But he remains in our world, probing it to find its follies and to show them up. He is a kind of realist, not a fantastic.—

London theatre critic Ivor Brown

bread and butter. The quintet is just a labour of love.

Alberta-born Ron Collier toured Canada and the States as a member of the Canadian National Ballet Company orchestra before settling in Toronto. He heard that Norm Symonds was forming an experimental jazz group, and joined up. He and Norm studied composition with Gordon Delamont, Ron concentrating on works for quartet, and eventually he formed his own quartet to rehearse his writing. Later he added a fifth voice, guitarist Ed Bickert, and the quintet now includes Ron on trombone, Bernie Piltch on clarinet, alto and baritone saxophone, Carne Bray on bass, and Ron Rully on drums. There's a full spectrum of tastes and personalities in the group, but they all feel most at home in the emotional world of jazz.

They've performed successfully at the Stratford Festival, on CBC radio and television many times, they've cut discs for the CBC International Service, performed with a symphony orchestra in Schenectady, and they've been invited to play with symphonies in Detroit and Louisville, Kentucky. The last time CBC radio presented this talented group was in a CBC Symphony Orchestra performance of Symonds' Concerto Grosso for Symphony Orchestra and Jazz Quintet. They'll make a CBC Wednesday Night appearance this week in a program of blues. The program will be in three parts, each a variation on a blues theme.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Mistress of the Dance. In Canada, the words "ballet" and "Franca" are almost synonymous. Celia Franca, ballerina with the Sadler's Wells company in London and ballet mistress for London's Metropolitan Ballet, gave up a sure and secure position in England to come to Canada in 1950 to found the National Ballet of Canada. She has now embarked upon yet another venture—the establishment of a year-round school of ballet in Canada—and this venture is the subject of her conversation with freelance broadcaster Wendy Butler.

Those Soggy Ontario Readers. People who bewail the imminent dangers of nuclear war and remark that life was better should remember the Ontario school readers of the 1890's. Burnings, drownings and deaths abounded in them; they recounted so many shipwrecks and other soggy deaths that their readers sometimes became water-logged. Laura Jamieson, schoolgirl in those days, recounts the sagas of the soggy readers. Mrs. Jamieson was for 11 years a juvenile court judge in Burnaby, British Columbia, was active in the suffragette movement in that province, a member of the British Columbia legislature for seven years and a Vancouver alderman for two years. Now, at the age of 75, she is actively retired and lives in Vancouver.

On CBC Wednesday Night

Tichborne Claimant

. . . Heir or Impostor?

"His manners are not by any means vulgar; on the contrary, they are natural and unaffected . . . indeed, they are a good deal better than those of the majority of Englishmen. He certainly takes great liberties with the letter "h," but his accent is not a Cockney one. He pronounces almost every word in an odd, outlandish manner, and when he becomes excited in conversation this accent becomes stronger. He speaks in that low, wheezy tone which is peculiar to those who have had much to do with horses, and generally before commencing a sentence, he pants like a seal." That was one man's description of a fat butcher from Australia who claimed, in 1868, to be college-educated Sir Roger Tichborne, believed lost at sea in 1854, and heir to a fabulous fortune.

The Tichborne family declared the claimant an impostor, with the important exception of the Dowager Lady Tichborne, mother of the missing heir to the title, who emphatically held that in the gross, semi-literate gent from Wagga, Wagga, New South Wales, she recognized her slender son. He was brought to trial. The case lasted 188 days, cost a quarter of a million dollars, and shook Victorian England as no non-political case has ever done, before or since. For more than ten years the country was split into passionate partisanship, with issues of class conflict Australia, that a man answering the description of her son had and religious prejudice arising from what had at first appeared to be a simple claim by a long-lost traveller to his family's title and estate.

In 1853 at the age of 24 the real Sir Roger had sailed from Le Havre to Valparaiso, crossed the Andes, and reached Rio de Janeiro in 1854. In April of that year he sailed from Rio on the Bella. The vessel floundered with all hands. His insurance was paid and his will proved the following year, the baronetcy and estates passing to his younger brother Alfred Joseph. The Dowager Lady Tichborne refused to believe that her son had drowned, and welcomed every tramp sailor who might have news of him. When Sir Alfred died in 1866 she advertised widely for Sir Roger, and eventually heard, through an agency in Sydney, turned up as a butcher in Wagga Wagga. After an exchange of letters and snapshots, the butcher and Lady Tichborne met in Paris, and she accepted him unconditionally as her son. But suspicious members of the family scouted around and obtained evidence that the claimant was none other than Arthur Orton, son of a Wapping butcher, who had deserted ship in Valparaiso in 1850 and drifted eventually to Australia.

There was much to support Lady Tichborne's belief. The claimant was able to answer scores of questions about intimate details of the real Roger's younger life, put to him by family servants and others, over a hundred of whom contended that they recognized him, in spite of great changes in his appearance. On the other hand, he muffed all questions about his years at college, and there was great mystery about an important tattoo mark which he claimed to have but would not display. The gullibility of witnesses, the jury, and the public was almost unbelievable, and it looked for a while as if the butcher would win out, but in the end Arthur Orton was sentenced to 14 years in jail.

From a transcript of the evidence and the contemporary press, Alan King has reconstructed the case for CBC Wednesday Night this week. He presents some of the most interesting cross-examining ever recorded at an English trial, and some colourful sidelights on the butcher-baronet, one of the boldest and most determined impersonators ever to gamble with British law. Henry Comor will be heard as the claimant, with Diana Maddox as Lady Tichborne and a cast of leading Canadian performers.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

A Stenographer Goes Prospecting. Vera Hamilton felt sorry for all her desk-bound fellow-stenographers one lovely day when she and her geologist employers set out for a day of claim-staking. Nothing to do but enjoy the sunshine and write things on posts, she thought. Then she found herself at the end of a chain slogger over rocks and under barbed wire looking for axe-marks. Mrs. Hamilton has gone back to typewriter-pounding.

The Personal Factor. Farming isn't for everybody and all farming isn't for all farmers. There's what Jean Tweed calls "the personal factor" to be considered. Mrs. Tweed and her actor-husband, Tommy, have a farm on the outskirts of Toronto.

Ellen Fitz-Simon. Ellen Fitz-Simon was born Ellen O'Connell. She was the daughter of the Rt. Hon. Daniel O'Connell, M.P., Irish liberator and Lord Mayor of Dublin. Ellen was brought up at her father's country house in Kerry, she was educated in France, spoke Irish, English and French fluently, and wrote verse. Christopher Fitz-Simon, a Toronto actor, is Ellen's great-great grandson. Today, with the help of excerpts from her diary, he recalls the events in the life of Ellen Fitz-Simon.

Balanced Listening On CBC Fall Radio

CBC radio will stress a balanced entertainment week in its fall schedule of Trans-Canada network programs.

New shows have been added to the schedule and some existing ones given new times to provide a strong daily foundation of feature programs.

Moved to new time periods are Project 60, the CBC Symphony Orchestra and Vancouver Chamber Orchestra concerts, and Children's Magazine.

Among new programs will be performances by a specially-organized CBC light concert orchestra, regional variety shows, a serious-music talent contest, highlights from Trans-Canada Matinee, short-story readings by actor John Drainie, and a series of national-music programs.

Project 60, its scope widened to include music and drama programs as well as documentaries, will be heard on Tuesday evenings and repeated on Sunday afternoons.

The CBC Symphony Orchestra broadcast will be heard on Friday evenings instead of Sunday evenings. A major undertaking by the orchestra later in the year will be five concerts in which all of the Beethoven symphonies will be performed.

The Vancouver Chamber Orchestra concerts will be heard on Monday evenings.

Children's Magazine will be moved from Saturday mornings to Sunday afternoons.

A 50-piece light concert orchestra is being formed by the CBC to play Saturday evening programs. Selections will range from popular music to familiar classics.

Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, variety shows pro-

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Mirrors. Mirrors are useful items (for fixing one's hair and applying one's lipstick) and can be amusing (at the local fair, for example, when they reflect ordinary-sized people as nine feet tall). But there are just too many of them around — hiding faulty construction on stores, in friends' houses, in public washrooms—and they don't reflect what the passer-by wants to see at all. Shirley Higginson is an Edmonton freelance broadcaster.

Books I've Been Reading. Matinee's regular book-reviewer makes her first appearance for the 1959 fall season today. Elizabeth Mascall is a writer, critic and broadcaster, is married and looks after a family and in her spare time, she reads books. Some of the books she's read lately will be discussed by Mrs. Mascall today.

The Battle of the Plains of Abraham. On September 13, 1759, the battle that proved to be a decisive engagement in the history of Canada occurred on the Plains of Abraham. A band of British forces commanded by General Wolfe defeated the French forces of the city led by General Montcalm and with that defeat New France went to the English. This year marks the 200th anniversary of that battle. Michael Oliver, Montreal broadcaster, talks to some of the people who have made studies of the historic battle.
